ABOUT THE ARTIST

Sarah L. Glabman is a fine art landscape and wildlife photographer and Master of Photography based in Scottsdale, Arizona. After more than twenty years photographing magazine covers, advertising campaigns and billboards seen in Times Square, Las Vegas and Los Angeles, she turned to fine art in 2024 after a journey through Africa. Her large-format work spans Iceland, Botswana, Namibia, Alaska and the American West.

BIOGRAPHY

For more than twenty years, photography was Sarah L. Glabman's profession. She photographed magazine covers, advertising campaigns and billboards seen in Times Square, on the Las Vegas Strip and across Los Angeles, and learned to work to a brief, a deadline and a production spec.

In 2024, a journey through Africa changed the direction of her work. Standing among elephants in Botswana and watching first light touch the dunes of Namibia, she found her way back to why she picked up a camera in the first place. Today she devotes herself to fine art landscape and wildlife photography.

Her field work spans the glacier lagoons and volcanic highlands of Iceland, the Okavango Delta and MalaMala Game Reserve, the Namib Desert, the brown bear coasts of Alaska and the canyons and deserts of the American Southwest. Every image is an original in-camera photograph, never AI-generated, produced in museum-quality acrylic in sizes up to 60 × 90 inches.

Sarah holds a Master of Photography and is a PPA and AZPPA Certified Photographer. She offers numbered collector editions at SLG.art, where collectors can walk the work in a virtual showroom, and creates licensed and commissioned work for hospitality, corporate, editorial and brand clients through SLG Masterworks.

STORY ANGLES

Six stories worth telling.

01

From Times Square billboards to the African bush

Two decades of commercial photography, then a 2024 safari that changed everything. Sarah's turn from advertising to fine art, and what a commercial eye brings to wild places.

02

Behind the lens: the encounters

A lion's direct gaze on the final day of a Botswana safari. A frame made lying flat on the floor of a safari vehicle at MalaMala. Brown bears working the falls at Katmai. The patience and luck behind each image.

03

Bringing the world home

How large-format photographic art changes a room, from Scottsdale homes to hotel lobbies, and how to choose scale, placement and light.

04

Why the edition matters

Collector's Reserve editions of 15 and 24, Limited Editions of 145, and a written promise that reserve images are never reproduced as wall art. What collectors should know about numbered photography.

05

Real photographs in the age of AI

Every image is captured in-camera at a real place and moment. Sarah on authenticity, finishing and why AI has no place in her work.

06

Art at altitude

Large-format photography for private aviation terminals, resorts and workplaces, and the growing role of a sense of place in commercial interiors.
